[Influential People from Kumamoto 8 Lafcadio Hearn]
 by Aoi Uchida from Kumamoto Prefectural Uto Junior High School
 Lafcadio Hearn studied Japanese culture and introduced it to the West. He was influenced by Japanese books and resolved to visit Japan. Later, he came to love Japanese culture and studied it.

Hearn studied Japanese culture because he was interested in it very much and wanted to understand it. Hearn came to Japan as a teacher and spread Japanese culture to the West. He is the man who spread the Japanese word "tsunami" to foreign countries.

Also, as a writer, he produced around thirty works. He wrote some books about Japan, for example, Miminashi Hoichi, Yuki onna, and so on. They are very famous. He moved to Kumamoto City to teach English at a high school. He wrote books while working. The books that were written by him are loved by the world even now.

Hearn studied Japanese cultures for a long time. Now we have to understand and learn about different cultures like him. This is his old house. He lived in the house with his wife Setsu for 1 year. It is in Kumamoto City. We can study his life there. Admission is free of charge. Please try to go there.

[Influential People from Kumamoto 9 Futa Yasunosuke]
 by Kenshin Yonemura from Kumamoto Prefectural Uto Junior High School
 Futa Yasunosuke was a Soshoya, a village head and an enterprising person. In particular, he built the Tsujigaki Dam on the wasteland of Shiraito Plateau. For his great achievement, he is still respected by many people.

Futa was a man who gave first priority to the people to enrich the life of the villagers. Born in Yabe in 1841, he reclaimed land and was appointed a village head at the age of 34 when there was no famine in his area. Although there were three rivers around it, the valley depended on rainwater and snowmelt, which dried to grow crops. One summer day, when Futa and his family were in the thirsty plateau, the weak villagers, and the children could learn to grow rice after his retirement, he continued to walk a long time on the way to make his rounds and to...
